Tamela Adkins – Divorce Attorney and “Super Chick”

Tamela L. Adkins has been practicing law since 1993 and is licensed to practice in Georgia and Florida. She received her undergraduate degree from Meredith College and graduated Cum Laude from the University of Bridgeport School of Law.

You introduce yourself as a “divorce lawyer,” but do you practice in any other areas of the law?

No, I exclusively handle divorce, post-divorce litigation and custody actions.

How has your own divorce experience impacted your practice?

Divorce is such a painful process for anyone, no matter what the circumstances are surrounding the break up. Having gone through a divorce myself in 2001, I understand the pain from first hand experience. I can emotionally connect with divorcing clients in a way that other attorneys may not be able to do, which helps me represent my client in a way that highlights how they want their marriage to end.

Why do you need to “emotionally connect” with your clients?

Contested divorces may take a couple years to complete. Being a good litigator is only one component to choosing a lawyer. The ability to work well as a team with your attorney is just as important in winning a divorce case.

What’s up with the superman ring you wear on your left ring finger?

I’ve always believed in super heroes!

I walked into a jewelry store when I was in the middle of my divorce, and I saw this ring. I bought it, took my wedding ring off right there in the store, and put on my ‘super chick’ ring. It was symbolic to me and still reminds me of the power we all have inside during tough times.

What your best piece of legal advice for someone going through a divorce?

Choose good legal counsel. A good attorney will respond to your individual needs during the divorce process in order for you to have your best outcome in the legal system.
